Dallas Zoo

650 South R L Thornton Freeway, Dallas
469-554-7500

Animal fans from around the world who watched online as a giraffe was born at the Dallas Zoo last month got to help choose her name. Zookeepers chose three possible names to vote on, all with African themes. Adia means “a gift,” Kanzi means “a treasure,” and Kipenzi means “loved one.”

Voting was free, but fans also had the chance to help rescue and support threatened wildlife in Africa, including giraffes. A generous friend of the Dallas Zoo agreed to match any donations made in the baby’s honor, up to $25,000.

Mom Katie delivered the calf, weighing 139 pounds and standing 5 feet, 10 inches tall, live on Animal Planet television and Animal Planet LIVE streaming. Viewers cheered Katie on as she pushed for nearly an hour to deliver the calf, and over the next hours as the wobbly little one tried to stand, took her first steps and began nursing.

Every dime raised from donations linked to the vote will go to conservation efforts. Although the Dallas Zoo is a non-profit zoological park itself, they plan to use 100% of the donations for conservation efforts around the globe. The zoo partners with many organizations to save animals from extinction, including the Cheetah Conservation Fund, the Giraffe Conservation Foundation, the Tarangire Elephant Project, and more.

There’s so much more going on at the Dallas Zoo, they had to start a blog (Dallas ZooHoo!) to tell you about it all. Visit zooHoo.dallaszoo.com to stay up to date. Also, you may purchase discount tickets through your concierge if you want to visit mom Katie and her new baby.

This season features two operas at Bass Hall and one at a smaller space, and the 2016 season will follow the same format.

JFK, which has been in development for several years, is by David T. Little and Royce Vavrek, the composer and lyricist behind Dog Days, which is in the 2015 season, running through May 2. JFK takes place on November 21, 1963, which President John F. Kennedy and first lady Jacqueline Kennedy spent at Fort Worth's Texas Hotel, before that fateful day in Dallas. However, the shape of the piece changed a great deal through the developmental process and the end result should be fascinating. The classic title of the 2016 season is Rossini's comedy The Barber of Seville. The third entry is in the smaller stage series, Opera Unbound, and it will be two new one-acts: Buried Alive and Embedded. Both operas are based on Edgar Allan Poe stories, A Premature Burial and the The Cask of Amontillado, respectively. JFK and The Barber of Seville will be presented in Bass Hall, and Buried Alive/Embedded will take place in the Scott Theatre at FW Community Arts Center.

The 2016 subscriptions are on sale now, single tickets go on sale to the general public August 1. You may contact your concierge to order single tickets to all performances at a 25% discount (excludes value seating). Discount will be taken off of up to (4) tickets per transaction and the $8 service fee (per order) will still apply.
