The American Lung Association is presenting the third annual competitive stairclimb, Fight for Air Climb, in Dallas on February 26, 2011 at 8am. This fun athletic event will challenge participants to climb the Renaissance

Tower in downtown Dallas. Participants may run or walk each one of the 53 floors on their way to a celebration at the top. This year's climb promises to be bigger and better than last year. Each participant will have a greater respect for healthy lungs when they reach the top.

Stairclimbs are an emerging athletic competition that take participants beyond the average run/walk event. These "vertical marathons" are growing in popularity. Participants can compete in the Fight for Air Climb as individuals or as teams. Registration is open at www.fightforairclimb.org. Create a team and your own webpage to spread the word to your friends, family and co-workers that you have joined in the fight to save lives by improving lung health and preventing lung disease.

Through team sponsorships and donations, Fight for Air Climb participants will support the American Lung Association's fight against lung disease. Proceeds from Fight for Air Climb will help find cures, protect clean air and promote smoke-free kids. Don't miss your chance to get involved in this one-of-a-kind event.
